Your new employer

Aboriginal Family Support Services is a lead Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisation (ACCO) providing services to Aboriginal families and communities across South Australia for over 40 years.

Your new role

Supporting Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal staff to improve their practice, the Senior Manager, Cultural Clinician will provide cultural supervision, support, and demonstration to ensure cultural safety for all Aboriginal clients. Providing cultural and clinical leadership and guidance to all AFSS programs, and in support of the Chief Executive, the incumbent will guide clinical and trauma responsive practice and cultural supervision. Providing cultural support and advice, case direction, and complex case decisions, cultural supervision can at times cross over with performance management processes.

We are looking for someone who:

- Provides leadership and supervision to enhance the positive impact of the organization, ensuring the safety of children, improving family wellbeing and sustainability.
- Models AFSS values and culture, working together in partnership with all Senior Managers to regularly review the customer and client experience.
- Contributes to the overall effectiveness and development of AFSS through contribution to, and implementation of, the AFSS Strategic Operational Plans and Policies, Procedures and Guidelines
- Manages and oversees the completion of administrative tasks including data reporting and the use of AFSS processes and tools to manage workloads and priorities
- Maintains and models an ongoing commitment to continuous improvement in the provision of services to internal and external customers

To be successful you will need:

- Valid and full South Australian Driver's License
- Safe Environments for Children and Young People Certificate
- A South Australian Working with Children Check (WWCC)
- A National Police Check
- NDIS Worker Screening Check clearance

Do not have a WWCC? You can apply on-line at www.screening.sa.gov.au

Position Objectives

Cultural and/or Clinical Supervision

Cultural supervision is how AFSS seeks to support and demonstrate cultural safety for all Aboriginal clients and staff through support for Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal staff to improve their practice.

The position provides cultural and clinical leadership and guidance to all AFSS programs, through cultural, clinical and administrative leadership across all aspects of the organisation in support of the Chief Executive. Cultural supervision is the primary mode of supervision within AFSS that guides clinical and trauma responsive practice. Whilst cultural supervision can at times cross over with performance management processes to support staff in improving their work, it is much broader than performance management. The three topics that can be addressed through cultural supervision are:

- Cultural support and advice: including general understandings of the Aboriginal and community and cultures and what this means in the lives of families.
- Case direction: including how families are supported in their decision making and how cultural and clinical practices are balanced to achieve the best outcomes for families.
- Complex case decisions: including knowing when to seek advice from others in challenging circumstances.

The incumbent is responsible for managing the Gazetted team and the Cultural Awareness Officer, and will further develop, lead and facilitate AFSS' cultural and/or clinical supervision program to ensure high quality service provision to Aboriginal families and the effective and efficient use of human, financial and physical resources in the provision of service across the state. The Senior Manager will be highly reflective, self-aware, and open to on-going learning and is absolutely committed to the hopes and strengths of all Aboriginal people and communities and supporting all staff that work within AFSS.
